A better understanding of the drivers that shape the world's energy needs is critical for our environment. OECD believes that innovation will help economies expand while reducing their energy demand by about 5 percent and energy-related CO2 emissions by nearly 25 percent. In the non-OECD countries, however, energy use and pollution emissions will rise along with population growth, increased access to modern energy and improving living standards. Access to modern energy is intrinsically linked with improvement in the quality of life. What should be the strategic approach for our industry in a world where booming population and growing prosperity demand more homes, businesses and transportation - and the energy that powers them? How do we achieve cleaner energy as we fulfill energy demands?
- Martín Mandarano, CEO, YPF Energía Eléctrica and YPF Luz
Carlos Skerk, Partner and Director, Grupo Mercados Energéticos Consultores
Diego Werner, Director, Aires Renewable Energy Resources
Moderator: Alma del Toro, President, Blue Bull Energy

12:30 PM – 3:00 PM

Networking Lunch with CEO's Roundtable – Buen Ayre A

Which are the mindsets of energy companies with regard to facing the challenges presented by the regional and national agendas in 2020? CEOs will examine the political and economic changes, the pressure of the social and environmental agenda, and the expectations created by new energy sources including non-conventional and renewable sources.

Sean Rooney, President, Shell Argentina
Daniel De Nigris, Lead Country Manager, Exxon Mobile Argentina
Moderator: Ernesto Cussianovich, Associate Director, Poliarquía Consultores

3:00 PM – 3:30 PM

Special Address from Omar Gutierrez, Governor of Neuquén – Buen Ayre B & C

3:30 PM – 5:00 PM

Vaca Muerta – Buen Ayre B & C

A general overview and a technical description of the Vaca Muerta project are key to grasp the importance of this reservoir for the region. An academic perspective on the legal framework considering the initiatives in support of this type of development shapes the understanding of the challenges ahead. On the practical side, speakers will address Techint Group's plans to develop a gas integrated project, the aftermath of the presidential elections, the financing alternatives for the development of the project and its associated infrastructure's needs.

Juan José Aranguren, Director of Energy Consilium
María Florencia Saulino, Dean, Universidad de San Andres, School of Law
Jorge Dimopulos, New Business Director, Tecpetrol
Patricio Álvarez Roldan, Managing Director, BNP Paribas
Moderator: Cesar Guzzetti, LATAM General Manager Gaffney, Cline & Associates

Rule of Capture and Unitization – Atlántico B & C

In the very near future Latin America in general, and Mexico, Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina in particular, will face extensive exploration and exploitation of on-shore and off-shore resources. At some point in time, potential issues regarding unitization and pooling will arise. This may happen in conventional and unconventional fields. At present, experiences have been scarce. The worldwide expertise of practitioners with legal and business backgrounds contributes to a better understanding of the problem and, more importantly, how to deal with it.

Julie Mahler, Senior Unitization Consultant, ExxonMobil Corporation

John P. Bowman, Partner, King & Spalding

Moderator: Arturo Pera, Partner, Marval, O'Farrell & Mairal
