Award Methodology

In the interest of transparency, AIEN's award methodology is detailed below.

1. The AIEN "call for award nominations" will take place during an 8-week period. The award nominations period will open on January 16, 2023 and close on March 17, 2023. AIEN members will receive email notifications when the call for award nominations open, as well as reminders prior to the deadline. The call for award nominations will also be posted on the AIEN 2023 IES website.
2. Only AIEN members in good standing are eligible to make nominations. Members may nominate others or self-nominate. Nominees do not need to be AIEN members to qualify.

3. Nominating members will be asked to specify:
 - a. the Deal, Discovery, Venture, Energy Transition Initiative or CSR Campaign that they are nominating;
 - b. the reason(s) why they believe it should win the award (200 words max);
 - c. any individuals whose contributions they believe should be specifically recognized in conjunction with the award and;
 - d. a link to the official press release.

Any information included in the nomination should be in the public domain.

4. AIEN staff will compile all nominations and submit them to the Awards Committee.
5. The Awards Committee will review each nomination submission independently and decide if it:
 - a. Meets the criteria of the award category; and
 - b. Promotes or demonstrates the principles of AIEN.

Each and every nomination will be carefully considered by the Awards Committee, consisting of AIEN members from across its regional chapters. The committee will discuss the candidates and decide on the top three finalists of each category. Once finalists have been decided, the committee will select each category winner through a committee vote. The Awards Committee reserves the right to forgo giving an award in any particular year.
